The restaurant is located in the historic center of St. Petersburg near St. Isaac's Square and the Yusupov Palace. The "Idiot" restaurant is situated in a basement with low ceilings, somber striped wallpaper, and lighted in red light shades. The interior also features retro chairs and round dining tables along with worn out sofas. There are flowerpots near the windows, and all the parts of the interior are all reminiscent of an old St. Petersburg apartment.

The food in the restaurant is in the same style: traditional salads, mushroom soup, cabbage rolls, and delicious pancakes. The relaxed atmosphere of the "Idiot" is of old St. Petersburg in the late XIX century, and this creates a sense of harmony and comfort while dining. The pleasant background music features classical, jazz and retro music. Board games are available for guests, such as: backgammon, chess, cards, and checkers. It offers high quality service and an English speaking staff. Here you can find Russian vegetarian cuisine but menu also includes fish and seafood.

A shot of vodka goes free of charge with every meal!!! :)
